

Antony Johnstone has worked as an academic within art, design, academic development and sustainability in higher education for over 10 years. During this time he has also volunteered in a number of mental health services. He is currently continuing his counselling and psychotherapy professional development at the University of Roehampton.