

Jean Burke has a private practice in West London and volunteers with Mind and The Mulberry Centre, a cancer support service. She works part-time as a management consultant and facilitator with organisations to help improve employee engagement and communications, and is a Trustee Director of NRAS (National Rheumatoid Arthritis Society). Jean recently completed the MSc in Counselling and Psychotherapy at the University of Roehampton and is working towards UKCP accreditation. She has a Masters in Business Studies from University College Dublin and a background of 20 years in senior management roles in the corporate sector.